March 2009

Dr. Jim Yong Kim Named Dartmouth President

After a year-long search, the Board of Trustees on March 2 announced the selection of Dr. Jim Yong Kim as Dartmouth's seventeenth president in the Wheelock Succession. Dr. Kim, the first Asian-American to head an Ivy League school, currently chairs the Department of Global Health and Social Medicine at Harvard Medical School, directs the Health and Human Rights Center at the Harvard School of Public Health, and is Chief of the Division of Global Health Equity at Brigham and Women's Hospital.

In announcing the appointment, the Board focused on Dr. Kim's commitment to teaching and mentoring young people in the field of public health, his record in heading large organizations, including Partners in Health, and experience in fund-raising for Partners and other third-world initiatives, including the WHO's efforts to promote AIDS treatment in Africa. He co-founded Partners in Health with Dr. Paul Farmer, the subject of Tracy Kidder's book Mountains Beyond Mountains, which is now a staple of high school and university curriculums. Dr. Kim is featured in the book, available from Amazon for about $10.

Born in Seoul, Dr. Kim grew up in Muscatine, IA, where he was valedictorian, president of his senior class, and quarterback on his high school football team. A graduate of Brown, Dr. Kim is married to Younsook Lim, a pediatrician at Boston Children's Hospital. The Kims have two sons.

Some alumni groups (e.g. Hanover Institute) expressed concern that Dr. Kim may not be adequately familiar with the College's pre-eminence in undergraduate education and may steer the College even further toward post-graduate programs and research. Others expressed concern over his lack of administrative experience in academia. However, two of the Board's alumni "petition" selections, Peter Robinson and T.J. Rodgers, were outspoken in their praise of Dr. Kim. I was very impressed with Kim's acceptance speech and apparent admiration for the work of John Sloan Dickey. I recommend all '66 classmates search Dr. Kim on YouTube.com for video selections of his speech and interviews.

Reservations for rooms before and after the reunion are available at the same rate on a "space available" basis.

Attendees

Sixty-Sixth Night of the Year

(Google Earth map and contact data for most '66er's can be downloaded from our website)

Three geographic areas celebrated the 66th Day of the Year with luncheons or dinners. Keep in mind that more group events can be organized even though the 66th day has passed! The hope is to reacquaint classmates who live in close proximity to each other. Use the Google map to find your classmate neighbors.

San Francisco Bay Area classmates got a jump on the 66th Night celebrations by gathering for a luncheon in San Francisco. They held this event at the perfect place, Perry's Restaurant, owned and operated by Perry Butler '64 and now also by his daughter, Margie '02. Good food, good drinks, and plenty of memories made for a great time. In the true spirit of the new 66th Night celebration, classmates who had not known each other while at Dartmouth shared conversation and found that at this point in life they have a lot in common. It looks like there will be continued contact among members of this group and hopefully that will expand to more classmates in the Bay Area for future get-togethers.

Ten full-time and part-time residents of the Upper Valley (Chuck Sherman and Margie Carpenter, Petie and Dick Birnie, Susan and Gus Southworth, Ann and Ted Thompson and Bill Malcolm and Peggy Plunkett) dined in the Zimmerman Lounge at Blunt Alumni Center in Hanover. Margie made lasagna and salad; Ann Thompson brought a cake frosted with "66". A convivial time was had by all.

Afterwards, some went to men's hockey playoffs (we lost) and some went to women's basketball (we beat Brown). It was a joy to bring Bill Malcolm back into the fold of Class friendship. Bill is on the board of overseers of Dartmouth Skiway and lives in Lyme, NH. He markets business software that runs on Microsoft systems.

Unable to find classmates in the Washington area who could get together for the 66th night, Jim Weiskopf and John Rollins had lunch together March 9th (technically 69th afternoon) at Jim's office in Rockville, MD. While there John provided some pro bono consulting advice to Jim and his staff on selecting new data management software for managing Fisher House's expanding list of donors.

Any groups meeting in the future should send photos and descriptions to 66th Night Coordinator Roger Brett at roger@casabrett.com

Class of 1966 Lodge Contributions

As of March 11, 150 classmates have contributed or pledged $107K to the Class of 1966 Lodge, in addition to the $25K from the Class treasury and one memorial gift. We are within $28K of our goal, something we should be particularly proud of in an economic environment which has seen the stock market drop over 50% in the last eighteen months. New donors since January include Bill Gruver (John Sloan Dickey Contributor), Gary Broughton, John Hargraves, Bill Higgins, Al Keiller, Gus Southworth, and Mike Urbanic (Ross McKenney Contributors), and Rich Abraham, Bob Baird, Steve Bryan, Jon Colby, Dave Hightower, Jim Hourdequin, Kevin Hughes, Gus King, Russ Sabin, Don Schwartz, Henry Teague, Ed Temple, and Pete Titcomb (John Ledyard Contributors). Fund-raising Chair Jim Lustenader writes,

"Our thanks to the 150 donors who have stepped forward to support this fantastic addition to the Dartmouth experience. If you have not yet contributed, please do so now -- and if you have contributed, please consider increasing the amount of your gift or pledge. Why? Because 2009 marks the 100th anniversary of the founding of the DOC, and it would be great to mark the occasion by presenting a check from the class to the club during our mini-reunion over Homecoming Weekend in October. Also, with new tax laws being put in place that will reduce the value of charitable deductions in the future, cash contributions made this year will be more valuable to you than those made going forward. (If you have made a pledge to the Lodge, this is a good reason for you to consider making full payment of that pledge in 2009.) The response to the Lodge Fund campaign has been tremendous thus far; let's keep the momentum going so we can hit our target in the next seven months. Please see the donation form below for all of the details -- and thanks in advance for your support."

News from Classmates

For the second year in a row, a group of intrepid 66ers met the winter elements in New Hampshire, protected by a rustic lodge, warm fire, sumptuous food and drink, and fellowship. Zum, zum, zum! This year Nancy and John Hargraves joined the fun and facilitated songs and smiles at the piano. Several members of Paul Zeller's Glee Club were in attendance, and we had lyrics to all of our Dartmouth favorites in little printed booklets from Blunt. John played from the official Dartmouth Song Book. We sounded great!

The main event was the show shoe trek up Rattlesnake Mountain, led by John Rollins. The view of Squam Lake and Lake Winnipesaukee and the surrounding hills was breathtaking (so was the hike up, for some). There was more snow shoeing and cross-country skiing after lunch in quaint Center Sandwich, NH. Evening entertainment, besides song, included a projected screening of the classic "Animal House". It brought back memories for most of us. Laura and Drew Hinman brought us popcorn. They are wonderful "innkeepers". The Minary Center is open for rental by anyone who is Dartmouth-affiliated.

Speaking of winter sporting activities, Ted Amaral is at it again: "Check out a YouTube slideshow I posted (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=sFuUWahxIrc>). It shows me iceboarding (also called freeskating or winter windsurfing) on the Connecticut River, launching from Wilson's Landing 2.5 miles north of The Green on Route 10. The two ice boaters are Dan Ohara, Thayer '58, and his neighbor's son. They both live in Lyme. Dan found the sailable ice and posted it on one of the ice sailing sites. I couldn't resist. Dan says it has been 50 years since conditions like this appeared. Thank you Ms. Nature. People routinely sail ice boats on the Hudson River, but not the Connecticut. It was a long day, but well worth the effort, don't you think?"

Want more on winter sports? Jonathan Wiesel writes, "Life is still a kick! I'm doing a lot more writing, mostly for magazines and websites. Have a new website (www.crosscountryskifun.com) and e-book (Cross Country Ski Gateways) on the site; am also working as a ski/trails/resort planner and designer. Just got back from a media tour to Alberta---fantastically beautiful country, great people, and skiing around Lake Louise and Kananaskis Country." The March/April Dartmouth Alumni Magazine recognizes Jonathan's book and his founding of recreational trails planning firm Nordic Group International.

Tim Butterworth was elected to the NH Legislature for Cheshire County. After Dartmouth, Tim received a Masters at UNC- Chapel Hill in English/American Literature, and taught middle and high school English for about 30 years, including ESL in Bolivia, Spain and Costa Rica. His qualifications for public office included time as a Vermont-NEA negotiator, positions on the Chesterfield Advisory Planning Board and the Chesterfield Conservation Commission, Selectman, and NH Current Use Board. Married with three children and two grandchildren, Tim's wife Kay is a special ed. teacher. He was on the NHDPL Platform Committee in 2004 and the Chesterfield Democratic Committee. His own platform included universal health care, fair taxes, and environmental protection. Congratulations, Tim, on your election.

Bob McCarty is a Professor of Radiology in Minnesota. His research involves gastrointestinal tract imaging, including hollow and solid organs. He is also a Co-investigator on an NIH R01 grant for CT Colonography.

Dartmouth College Fund

As with many non-profit organizations in this recession, the College is having a tougher time meeting its fund-raising goals. Our class is at about 60% of our goal and the Class Executive Committee has made a commitment to do everything we can to bring in $200K. Head Agent Bob Spence writes:

Abraham Lincoln said that it is not how many days we live but how we live those days that matters. (Did you know Dartmouth's administration, being pro-slavery, refused Lincoln an honorary degree?) So what does this have to do with anything?

Have you read The Ascent of Money by Niall Ferguson? The book puts the present economic bubble in perspective, hardly a unique phenomenon. What makes this one so painful, however, is that we are the history book into which it is being written. I've seen 30 years of my savings in Citibank stock go from $62 a share to $1.71. Maybe it's time to change venue for a moment and reflect on what's important in life.

We turn 65 this year, so what has life taught us? For me, life is defined as, a day, works, and faith. We live only in the present, and no guaranty ensures we will rise to meet the day; the day will be successful in whatever terms we define success; or we will survive to greet tomorrow's dawn. During each day we all strive to live fully, supported by our faith that if we perform certain works, then success and contentment will be achieved. This concept is not mine. I am still learning it a day at a time, as have past generations over thousands of years.

Education is the basis of works. This is the sole reason Dartmouth exists. As John Sloan Dickey told us upon matriculation, the day-to-day business is learning. We chose Dartmouth based on our faith that the education provided would give us the ability to perform the works necessary to have a fulfilling life. The motivation for the eighteen thousand applicants for the Class of 2013 is no different. Alumni support, just as when we were students, makes that faith a reality for today's Dartmouth students, a day at a time.

Dartmouth is asking for your help in this time of need. The $47 million in cost reductions to be imposed over the next two years will have an impact. We can argue management concepts in the context of this economic environment. Management issues have been a constant debate at Dartmouth even before Lincoln's day; in fact since before 1769 when Lord Dartmouth didn't want Eleazar Wheelock to establish the College. Such debates have covered almost every conceptual topic throughout the College's history. Not surprising. We are all individuals. How we apply our education to daily works is as varied as we are. Each day is an education; and just as with the present students, we grow as we learn both from our collective triumphs and mistakes.

How will we, the Class of '66, respond to the present needs? Given need-blind admission and the undergraduate liberal arts philosophy of Dartmouth, the needs are easy to envision. They walk around on two legs. While we cannot guarantee their future nor control how they apply their Dartmouth experience in their life works, we can underwrite their faith and support their hope a day at a time.

A century ago William Jewett Tucker brought the College through difficult economic times like those we face today. He created the environment, of which we are a product, wherein Dartmouth students develop into ethical and responsible citizens, one day at a time. He had faith in his works, just as we should.

Maintaining that environment now costs $242 per day. Can you, as a member of the Class of '66, assure one student one day's potential to grow? Every contribution, no matter the size, helps. What matters most is the value you place on your day through your works and your faith. As indirect and impersonal as this method might seem, such will make a difference to someone somehow, and the feeling derived from having faith in such works makes a day brighter for all.

We are Dartmouth !

Best, Bob

Miscellany

Please keep me posted of your life's comings and goings...news has been a little sparse of late. Don't forget you can now send a green card electronically from the Class of 1966 website.

Dues notices have been sent to the few who have not as yet paid. As you know, dues pay for our subscriptions to the DAM, class newsletters, and class projects.

Lastly, HAPPY SPRING, hopes for economic recovery, and see you in Santa Fe!
